About This Course

About This Course:

This qualification prepares adults, without traditional qualifications, with the knowledge, skills and behaviours for higher-level study at university.

It is a fast-track pathway condensed into 1 year of study providing you with a holistic overview of the key subjects within health and science.

It is ideal for you if you are interested in the science behind health and want to make a positive difference to people and their local communities and will enable you to study a wide variety of academic and professional undergraduate degree programmes.

Due to the fast-track nature, it is intense and we expect that you will also work independently, in your free time, to research, revise and complete assignments.
